MYRTLE WINS THIS TIME

The Shamrock III Makes Good Showing.

On board the Shamrock III.

The third time, the third class yachts met yesterday, and the race resulted in a victory for the Myrtle. This is the first victory for her, the Shamrock III having won the two previous races.

The course was the same as usual, from the lighthouse out the channel to Waikiki and return. It looked at the start as if the wind would die out before the race was over, so some of the boats carried only three of a crew and took chances, but found out their mistake when the spar buoy was reached. The Shamrock III and the Pirate were badly handicapped in this respect, and although they kept up the race, they had a very hard time of it, shipping great quantities of water, and being forced to luff up nearly the whole way out to the stake boat.

The Myrtle rounded first, Skip second, Pirate third, and Shamrock III last. It was on the home run that the Shamrock III showed great speed, passing all the yachts except the Myrtle, and only losing by the narrow margin of four minutes thirty seconds, although she was a mile behind at the Waikiki turn.

In rounding the stake boat at Waikiki, the Skip ran fair into it, swamping it completely and giving two natives a very unexpected surprise; no help was needed, however, and the yachts all made for home.

Myrtle finished first, Shamrock III second, Pirate third, Skip fourth.

On board the Myrtle.

The superior of the Myrtle was again clearly demonstrated in a fresh breeze yesterday morning, in an interesting race between the Shamrock III, Pirate, Skip and the New Zealand boat.

The wind blew true and fresh from the northeast, and gave the skippers of the little craft all they wanted in handling their boats and sails.

The usual jockeying for position to start took place, and resulted, when the gun was fired, in the Pirate crossing first, followed by the Skip and Myrtle, with the Shamrock III some seconds behind.

The Myrtle set a balloon jib, as did the Skip, and the former sailed through the lee of the Skip, and soon left her behind. The Pirate was overhauled at the spar buoy by the Myrtle, and the positions then were, Myrtle, Pirate, Skip and Shamrock III. A course was shaped for the Bell, and good time was made, the little craft fairly flying through the water.

The Bell was rounded by the Myrtle well in the lead, followed by the Pirate, Skip and Shamrock III in the order named. All stood on close hauled for some time, the relative positions practically unchanged, when the Shamrock III went round on the starboard tack, followed soon after by the Pirate, the Myrtle and Skip meanwhile holding on their courses, coming round on the same tack a few minutes later. The butterfly fleet were now foaming along, heeling over to their spread of canvas, and travelling at a great rate.

Shamrock III and Pirate swung round on the port tack again, and the Myrtle and Skip did likewise, and all laid their course for the stake boat. The Myrtle, sailing in splendid shape, rounded first, followed in a disastrous fashion by the Skip. The helmsman of the latter craft, trying to make a quick turn, fouled the mark boat and capsized it, losing several seconds thereby. Shamrock III and Pirate rounded some minutes later in the order named.

The race from this on was, bar accidents, a gift for the Myrtle. The Skip and Myrtle were the only ones game enough to set balloon jibs, the Myrtle setting hers soon after rounding the stake boat.

The little champion fairly flew through the water, and the Mary L., which followed the race, could not keep up with her—in fact, the small boat left her behind for some distance. The Shamrock III improved her position, and gained considerably on the others in the run to the Bell buoy. Meanwhile, the gap between the Myrtle and Skip was being rapidly increased every mile that was sailed. The Bell was first rounded by the Myrtle, several minutes ahead of the Skip, followed in turn by the Shamrock III and Pirate. The Myrtle took her leading jib in on rounding the Bell buoy, and reached for the spar buoy, rounding it almost the same time as her rivals rounded the Bell.

The wind fell a bit light during the ensuing beat up the harbor to the finish, with an occasional fresh puff to break the monotony. The Myrtle did good work, and a few tacks put her over the line a winner, four minutes and fifteen seconds ahead of the Shamrock III. The Pirate took third place and the Skip followed her.

The Myrtle clearly proved herself a flyer in a breeze, and worthily upheld her reputation as a fast boat. The Skip did well in the breeze also, while the Pirate and Shamrock III did not seem to beat home in a heavy wind, and were never dangerous to the winner.

CATHOLICS AND BIBLE.

Father Boorman Talks of the Attitude of the Church.

Rev. Father Boorman preached a powerful sermon last evening at the Catholic cathedral on "The relation of the Catholic Church to the Bible," dealing with the charge that the Church did not permit the reading of the Book.

The sermon was a most powerful address aimed as it was at directly at the Protestant hearers, as for the edification of the Catholic listeners. He arrayed the facts from his own standpoint to show that the Catholic church had preserved the Bible from the time of the first gospel to the present day, and that it had made it possible to purchase a Bible for thirty cents today, whereas it formerly cost $8,000 to have a copy written. He insisted that the Roman Catholic Church had encouraged the reading of the Bible among its communicants. As to the non-Catholic he asserted that they believed that the Bible alone should be a guide and that everyone should interpret it as he would, but asked how the thousands who died before the Bible was obtainable had been saved. The attendance was large and the address was followed closely.
